SHORT PARAGRAPHS.

Here is a lesson never to be forgotten by insurance companies in America: It is announced by the Hartford Courant that the three insurance companies in that city which have survived the Chicago fire, and are still doing business, have received for premiums during the month of October almost double the amount obtained in October, 1870, by all the insurance companies, nine in number, then doing business in Hartford. In addition to which it is stated that the rates of premiums have been increased an average of 25 per cent.

It has hitherto been feared that the cutting of a canal through the Isthmus of Darien would divert the currents of the gulf stream from the British Isles, and thereby turn those countries into arctic deserts. Dr. William Carpenter, a distinguished English scientist, has recently in an elaborate address, shown that the western coast of England is not dependent upon the Gulf Stream for its temperate climate, and that even if that current should be turned in another direction by a canal through the isthmus, no serious consequences would ensue.

Notwithstanding the frost-bound condition of Chicago, the work of rebuilding the city goes bravely on. The Tribune says: "When the broken bricks and mortar and ashes are frozen into a solid conglomerate, we undermine the mass with pickaxes or wedge it apart with crowbars, and carry it to the lake shore, even across the railway tracks, and tumble it on the ice-pack of the outer basin. We build ovens to heat our bricks in, so that the mortar may not be frozen in the wall before it sets. We rub our hands and stamp our feet and wear coverings over our ears, so that we may lose none of the precious sunlight in these short days. Nothing less than 14 degrees below zero can give us pause."

"A good name is better than riches." A shrewd but unprincipled business chap lately attended the sale of a hotel in Ohio. He hadn't a cent in his pocket, but he stood up and bid boldly, "Twenty-eight thousand dollars." It was knocked down to him; and, when the question was asked, "Who is the purchaser?" this audacious scamp replied, "The Pennsylvania Railroad." Of course, he was not required in person to put up the money from an imperial buyer like that, whereby he was able, in the course of a couple days, to sell the whole to another party for $35,000, and clear the difference. The country is now said to be full of scamps buying hotels for the Pennsylvania Railroad.

A Berlin letter from an intelligent source says it is impossible to conceal the apprehension that a French coup d' état of some kind may upset things in a financial sense at any moment. Thiers is regarded with distrust, if for no other reason than his great age. No extreme or contradiction in his course need excite surprise. To this cause, no doubt, not a small part of the peculiarities and inconsistencies which, with all his vigor and statesmanship, have of late characterized him, is to be assigned. It is not to be disguised that French affairs are exciting a peculiar interest at the principal capitals, where the general belief appears to be that great changes, even a landing of the fugitive Emperor on French soil, should create no surprise.

The Legislature of Illinois has gone heavily into the reform business during its present session. One of the bills recently introduced is a decided curiosity. It relates to "injuries of persons," and provides not only for the liability of corporations, but declares that every person is liable and responsible to any servant or employee in his or her employ for death or injury resulting from negligence of any other servant or employee to the same extent and in the same manner as if the person injured or killed had not been in the service or employ of such person or corporation. Should this measure become a law the people of Illinois will probably find the maintenance of domestic establishments considerably more dangerous and expensive than they had looked for.

POLITICAL NOTES.

George Wilkes, the horse jockey, has chalked out a plan in his horse paper, to defeat Gen. Grant. Wonderful Mr. Wilkes!

It is well understood in Washington that Gen. Grant made no objection to the restoration of Mr. Sumner to the Chairmanship of the Committee on Foreign Relations, but Mr. Fish did.

A non-passive Democratic paper gets off this hit: Will the St. Louis Republican be pleased to explain how it comes about that it is so exceedingly anxious that no Democratic Convention be held at all, and also that it be held in St. Louis? Has that journal discovered the famous jewel, consistency?

The "passive policy" is losing ground among the Democrats. The New York World has pronounced against it, and some who at first favored it have taken a sober second thought and now express a preference for being killed to committing suicide. About the certainty of death, politically, there is no difference of opinion, the question being only as to the manner. The melancholy privilege is freely accorded.

The New York Post makes an important statement with reference to the position of Governor Hoffman. After announcing that he is no longer a Presidential candidate, the Post says: "Governor Hoffman also renounces his long-cherished adherence to the Democratic party. He is unreserved in his conviction that the party must be dissolved. For a long time he looked for its simple reorganization upon the basis of the exlar defeat in other States, too late to rally for next year's election, satisfy him that the final judgment of the people has been pronounced upon the party, under its present leaders, without regard to 'new-departures' or 'ancient usages,' 'passive policies,' or 'reconstructed platforms.' He is for a new party, out and out, and is ready to act with Horace Greeley, Carl Schurz and Charles Sumner."

The anti-Grant party don't grow much, if we are to believe what sympathizing papers say. For instance the Boston Post prints the following from Washington: "There is no concert of action among the elements of opposition to the Administration party. In fact, there is no well defined antagonism to the Administration developed among Republican Senators and Representatives. There is much of threatened conflict among the Republicans, and some mutterings heard from them against the Administration, but no one takes the initiative in open, pronounced hostility to Gen. Grant, save possibly, Senators Sumner and Schurz. It is known that several other Republican Senators, and some Republicans in the House, are opposed to his renomination, and say they would gladly vote for another Republican nominee, but when called upon to give expression to their views they invariably dispose of it by saying, 'Wait until we see further.'"

The Church property of New York city is immensely valuable. An estimate recently made puts the total at $200,000,000. The Roman Catholic sect is the richest as a whole, although the Episcopal Trinity Church, the richest as a single corporation, owns $50,000,000 worth of real estate.

Mrs. Abraham Lincoln is living in Chicago in the same house with her son, Robert T. Lincoln, in excellent health though in deep grief over the loss of her son Thaddeus. It is her purpose to make an early visit to Jacksonville, Florida, to remain during the winter.

THE TERRITORIES.

The amount of land disposed of at the Olympia Land office during the month of December was 14,608 acres.

The Baptist denomination at Seattle are preparing to build the largest church edifice in Washington Territory.

The U. S. steamer Lively is cruising about Puget Sound looking after loggers who are suspected of cutting timber on Government land.

Dominic Gerry, a member of Co. E, 23d Infantry, committed suicide on Wednesday last by shooting himself through the head. It is supposed his mind was deranged.

There are now two daily and five weekly papers published at Olympia, a village of perhaps twelve hundred inhabitants. Still another (a Democratic weekly) is projected.

On the night of the 1st inst., while the steamship California, hence for Olympia, was anchored off Esquimalt, she lost an anchor and eighty fathoms of chain, and narrowly escaped going ashore.

The California on her trip over to the Sound last week, stopped at Cape Disappointment, and took on board an officer and fifteen soldiers to relieve Capt. Haskell's company at San Juan Island, who are going to Arizona.

The Olympia Tribune warns people against buying property at any particular place on Budd's Inlet, in the hopes that the terminus will be located where they buy such land, because it is not settled which side of the Inlet will be selected by the railroad company.

European Catholic Reform.

The Old Catholic movement in Germany is making sure headway, especially in Bavaria, where there are now one hundred and fourteen Old Catholic congregations, with church property worth a million of dollars. The Archbishop of Munich and the Bishop of Passau, who last summer were exceedingly active in excommunicating the Old Catholic priests are now quiet. A majority of the theological professors at the Bavarian universities are Old Catholics; and the king is not expected to appoint any more "infallibilists" as professors. Less is known of the movement in Prussia. There are between seventy and eighty Old Catholic congregations in the provinces of Posen and Silesia, while the number in Westphalia and the Rhine provinces can hardly be less. In Baden twenty-nine Old Catholic churches are in full operation, and seven are reported in Wurtemberg. In Austria, too, including the Tyrol, the movement is active. Four Old Catholic congregations have been organized in Prague, and seven in Vienna. In Hungary the Old Catholics are in a large majority, most of the bishops are with them, and the Diet at Pesth has recognized them as the true Catholics. In France and Belgium, owing to the indifference of the higher classes to religion, little is heard of the question, although Father Hyacinth is actively preaching the reform; but quite a number of Old Catholic churches have sprung up in Holland.

A Monster in the Air.

[From the British Quarterly.]

When the first hydrogen balloon fell at Gonesse, (near 1783), a most extraordinary scene was witnessed. The inhabitants of the village were struck with terror upon seeing an unknown monster descending from the sky. A genuine dragon could not have excited more consternation. Was it some fabulous animal realized in the flesh, or was it the great fiend in proper (or improper) person? On all sides they fled. Many sought an asylum at the house of the cure, who thought that the wisest mode of dealing with the intruder was to subject it to exorcism. Under his guidance they proceeded falteringly to the spot where it lay, heaving with strange contortions. They waited to see what effect the good man's presence would produce, but the creature seemed to be utterly insensible to his fulminations. At length, one of the crowd, more intrepid than the rest, took aim with his fowling-piece, and tore it so severely with the shot that it began to collapse rapidly; whereupon the rest, summoning up courage, darted forward and battered it with flails or gashed it with pitchforks. The outrush of gas was so great that they were driven back for a time, but when the dying monster appeared exhausted, the peasants fastened it to the tail of a horse and drove it along until the carcass was utterly dismembered.

Universalist Belief.

The Universalist Leader gives the following dictum or dogma on Universalist belief:

Universalists believe it the final holiness of all. The times and seasons they pretend not to know. The older Universalists, Murray, Winchester, and others, believed that sin and punishment would extend into the coming world. Ballou and others, coming later, thought that sin is confined to the life in the flesh. Many, we think most of the Universalists of to-day, especially in the Eastern States, see a connection between the soul and its character, which makes instant redemption impossible. We all hold that, so long as a soul is a soul, it must have all the freedom it has now. When death removes the temptations of the body, instead of making salvation impossible, it only makes it less difficult. God's saving power is not limited to time and place. In this matter, as in others, a thousand years with Him are as one day, and one day as a thousand years. We believe that what He has promised, planned, and purposed, He will accomplish; and that He and not man shall determine where, when and how.

Senator Stevenson, of Kentucky, claims the credit of being at variance with the Democracy regarding the Ku Klux. It was he [illegible] ponement of the time for the suspension of the habeas corpus act, and, in the meantime, for holding the leaders of the Ku Klux responsible, civilly and criminally, for the acts of the members of the Klan. This is pretty wild law, and considering the tenderness of the Democracy for individual liberties, it is amusing to see Mr. Stevenson proposing to go at least to the limit of the most extreme interpretation of the law of conspiracy in dealing with Ku Kluxism. But if the bill is not a practical suggestion toward the solution of the vexed question, it is of interest as the first concession on the part of a Democrat that the United States should or could deal with the evil at all. Perhaps if the responsibility for peace in the South were on the Democrats, they might discover several powers latent in the General Government which they do not now suspect.

The emigrating tendencies of the Germanic race are exciting remark in Europe as well as in America. Emigrant ships in large numbers sail from German ports. Germans in large number cross through France to embark for America. Hull, England, is a large entrepot for this emigration seeking embarkation at Liverpool. German populations are found both in North and South America. On the continent of Europe this extensive emigration has but a small extent depleted the supply of Teutonic humanity. Gradually, but surely, German population, language, and ideas is driving northward the Scandinavian element of Denmark. Russia is anxiously endeavoring to resist the current of Germanic influence in her Baltic provinces. It constitutes a splendid material of which to build up free States.

The Senate Debate on Civil Service Investigation and Retrenchment.

From the New York Times' Washington correspondent we have the following summary of what took place in the Senate on the 14th of December in regard to civil service investigation:

The Senate held a caucus again this morning, beginning at 10½ o'clock and lasting till the opening of the Senate. The subsequent proceedings in the Senate revealed what had taken place in caucus. It appeared that the advocates of the revival of the Retrenchment Committee were offered a standing committee of the Senate on Investigation and Retrenchment, but to be ruled like other committees of the Senate, and not to be clothed with extraordinary powers, except by the authority of the Senate in special cases. This was not what Trumbull, Schurz and their friends wanted. Mr. Anthony offered in the Senate the caucus resolution, and Mr. Trumbull immediately offered as an amendment the substance of the manifesto embodied in his resolution for the Committee on Retrenchment, and to give the new Committee power to send for persons and papers. Mr. Sherman urged against this that the duties of the standing committees had never been defined in the resolutions by which they had been established. Mr. Anthony agreed, and expressed his willingness to vote for the investigations desired after the Committee had been raised in the regular manner. Mr. Wilson deprecated a division on what he thought so slight a pretext, but his attempt at peace-making was a failure as usual. The morning hour expired while Mr. Trumbull was speaking, and Mr. Edmunds had the floor, but he yielded it to Trumbull to complete his speech, and then it became evident that the Senate was to have one of its wordy and perhaps eloquent days. Mr. Trumbull supported his amendment in a brief but moderate talk. Mr. Edmunds, when he got the floor, again replied to what had before been said by different Senators, with the effect of creating an impression that we have fallen upon times of unusual evil in the administration of public trusts. The fidelity of this administration, he asserted, would compare favorably with any that had gone before it. Considering the number of Government officers, the proportion of failures in public trusts for the last three years was less than in any recent administration. There was, therefore, no occasion for special alarm now, and certainly no occasion for giving to the Committee such unusual powers. Mr. Patterson thought the discussion was on a mere question of form. Mr. Schurz had, all this time been waiting with his portfolio on his desk containing a prepared speech, in arraignment of the civil service, which, with a neat little introduction, he fitted to the resolution before Senate. The speech had evidently been prepared before the resolution had ever been proposed and for another occasion. He undertook to prove that the power to send for persons and papers was necessary generally to the Committee, in order that the New York Custom House investigation, begun last winter, might be continued. He charged that the Committee on Retrenchment had been cut off at the beginning of last session, just after the report of Mr. Patterson on the general order business had been made. Lest further corruption and wider reaching evils should be discovered, he had the copy of the evidence taken at that time, dog-eared and marked for ready reference, and read copious extracts from witnesses. These statements the report refuted. He acknowledged that the evidence exonerated the President from any connection with the alleged frauds, but at the same time intimated that there was some mysterious power preventing reform. Mr. Schurz was followed by Mr. Conkling, who made a remarkably effective and eloquent extemporaneous speech, which brought Mr. Schurz often to his feet in interruption for explanations with which he attempted to sustain his tottering sophistries. The report of the Committee summing up the Custom-house evidence was read, which made no charges against any public officer, commended the administration of the Custom House, but recommended a committee to revise the Custom laws. The committee finished its labors and never even intimated that further investigations were necessary, nor had any such proposals been made by any one. The Republican party and the Administration were defended eloquently from any desire or need of avoiding investigation. The speech held the attention of the Senate and galleries, as it is seldom held by any one. The design of the zealous advocates of the resolution was manifested by their whole spirit. Investigation per se in the interest of reform they do not care for, assured on all sides that the Senate would not refuse the committee all the authority needed to investigate particular cases. They would not be content unless the Senate delegated power to initiate investigation at will. They want a kind of star chamber investigation, in which ammunition against the Administration can be manufactured. This purpose, in somewhat dissimilar terms, is broadly circulated. This, of course, will not be allowed. The resolution of Mr. Anthony will pass without the amendment offered by Mr. Trumbull; at least such is the appearance to-night, and the committee is likely to have much more investigating to do [illegible] the motion of the Administration Senators, as they are termed, than by those claiming to be reformers. Mr. Trumbull professes not to be actuated by hostility toward the President in the position which he assumes, but his methods of argument are so similar to those of the avowedly hostile, that suspicions are constantly raised as to his sincerity. Most of the others make no pretences of Republican sympathies.

one of the most successful war books published in this country. The supplementary chapters, grouped under the general heading of "After the War," contains some pleasant sketches illustrating the character of General Sherman, and the wit, humor and good feeling of the soldiers of his army. Among the new stories told by Col. Nichols is one called the Seal of Iron:

In the Connecticut valley, ever so many thousands of millions of years ago, when the land was lower, or the waters of the sea rose higher, there were broad, flat beaches which at each turn of the tide were left bare. Over these beds of mud ran many animals, enormous birds, of whose existence there remains in our day no evidence save their huge tracks imprinted upon the yielding earth, eternally fixed there by the succeeding tide, which overspread them with a glittering veil of sand, by and by to harden into stone. A silent, immutable record that, which tells the student of to-day the history of ages past.

As the traveler journeys through Great Britain over the continent, the garrulous guide will point him to some broken wall or ruined archway, and tell him that, many centuries ago, the legions of Rome had camped there, and now and then we read of excavations which have brought to light tablets of bronze, or weapons of war which reveal to the curious antiquary another chapter in the history of gone-by races of men.

The campaigns and marches of the Northern armies will be remembered in nursery story and thrilling legend these many years, but here and there a mark was made which will outlive the memory of man—a tale of justice justified, and printed in blood with letters of fire.

One morning in the month of February, 1865, a detachment of troops from Sherman's army were at work breaking railroad. This great host of fighters and marchers had left the city of Savannah behind them, a gift of conquest to the nation. With great strength, with noble endurance, with wondrous patience, they had struggled waist deep through swamps which were deemed impassable, they had built thousands of bridges, they had swam treacherous streams, always in the face and fire of a desperate foe. They were well used to twisting and bending those long strips of iron, destroying the great arteries of the life of the rebellion. They had left their mark all the way, from Vicksburg, through Memphis, across the mountains, over the hills and plains of Georgia, and now in the uplands of South Carolina they had reached the great heart of the system, and the heart of disloyalty as well, where the highways of trade and treason met and separated to their furthest bounds. It was a still, [illegible] morning of Sabbath quiet, that of which I write. Far away to the west the railroad ran to a point, and was lost to the horizon's edge. All along the way was marked by light columns of smoke, which lazily lifted themselves into the misty air. About them swarmed thousands of men, feeding the flame, or bending the heated iron into the strange, fantastic shapes their fancy or accident might direct.

In the foreground of this scene, there was enacted one of those solemn dramatic incidents which symbolize a nation's history, wherein the actors, impressed with one present, all-powerful idea, unconsciously become prophets as well. Deft, off-hand, and earnest of will, a party of soldiers fashioned the white-heated rails into the two letters U. S. With many a shout and stern exclamation, the earth was excavated at the exact point of center of the great cross-roads. A massive frame-work of solid pine soon filled the cavity to the level of the way. To this foundation, with many a strap and spike, were fastened the iron letters—symbolic of Union, liberty, and law; and when it was all completed, and the U. S. shone in the sun as if they had grown into the soil, a rough, sunburned soldier of the West raised his weather-beaten hat from his forehead, and with something of sadness, and more of proud confidence, and yet with that sublimity of thought which is the voice of God speaking through the people, exclaimed, "There, boys, we've planted an iron seal right in the center of the rebellion. These fellows shall know that the United States Government has been here and left its mark."

A few months from that day and the Confederacy, which for long years had lifted its haughty front before the powers of earth, went crumbling to the earth, smitten at its foundation, a hopeless wreck, an eternal ruin. The iron seal had made a deeper imprint than the Western soldier hoped or even the [illegible], and it shall go down the coming centuries the signet of the government of law and the people.

A negro boy of eight has a picture primer to teach him his letters. One of the pictures is that of a bull chasing a boy, which the little darkey watches from day to day, gleefully exclaiming: "He hasn't cotch'd him yet!"

EVIDENCE OF
DR. ABORN'S SUCCESS
IN THE TREATMENT OF DISEASES OF THE
LUNGS, CATARRH, BRONCHITIS,
AND DEAFNESS.
CURED.

The following is an extract from a letter just received by Dr. Aborn, from one of his patients:

Astoria, Oregon, Nov. 25, 1871.

Dr. Aborn—Dear Sir:—I am happy to state that by following your directions and [illegible] your medicine [illegible] I find all my [illegible] my hearing continues good; my lungs, I [illegible] sound and the catarrh is cured. My bronchial affections are better than they have been for ten years.

I am fully satisfied that no other Doctor could have saved me from [illegible], or cured me of [illegible] bronchial affections, etc.

My deafness was cured in three days, lungs and bronchial affections in about four weeks. May you live long to bless the world by relieving suffering humanity.

Yours truly,
DAVID INGALLS.

Still Another Remarkable Cure.

This is to certify that I have been afflicted for three years, and that I kept declining slowly until the latter part of last May, when I was [illegible] down [illegible] since which time, as before, I could get no relief. My disease baffled the skill of every attempt, and only left me weaker, until death would have been a relief at many times. Four weeks ago to-night I placed myself under the care of Dr. Aborn. [illegible] gave me immediate relief, and I don't [illegible] gain so rapidly and now, after using his medicine only four weeks, I have gained fifteen and one-half pounds, and feel like a new man.

Yours truly,
JAMES H. [illegible]
Needy, Clackamas Co., Oregon, Nov. 8, 1871.

CATARRH & NERVOUS DEBILITY.

[illegible] afflicted for about fifteen (15) years with [illegible]. Of late it affected my throat and lungs and [illegible] my whole system, so that I was scarcely able to pursue any business. I had tried several physicians without deriving the least benefit. In this seemingly hopeless condition, I applied to DR. ABORN about three weeks ago, and placed myself under his treatment, and I am most happy to state that I found wonderful relief within five minutes after using his apparatus and medicines, and continued to improve. I am now cured of the cough and pains through my chest and body, and, in fact, both mentally and physically I feel like a new person. I have recovered from the nervous debility. The offensive odor from my head and [illegible], which was so annoying, has disappeared. I have gained about eight pounds in three weeks. The Doctor has accomplished more in three weeks than what I supposed was possible to have done in as many months. Truly,
M. L. DEAN,

TUESDAY MORNING, JANUARY 9, 1872.

Safety and Security.

It is well said by the Albany (N. Y.) Journal that the strong point of President Grant's Administration is the sense of perfect security it gives the whole country. This is the supreme excellence—the sum of all merits. It is capacity, fidelity, honesty, statesmanship. It is soundness of principle and prudence of direction. The Administration calmly and steadily pursues its great work, and the country goes forward with a feeling of undoubting trust and an assurance of entire safety. Republicanism dreads no perfidy. Trade and industry stand in no apprehension of disturbing agitation on the public credit or chimerical experiments in finance. Commerce fears no rash and inconsiderate policy of war. The rights of all are maintained and the great business interests of the country prosecute their labor with the full confidence of free play, tranquil security and watchful protection. Following up this exposition the same paper asks: If this be not the worthiest Administration, what better can worthy Administration offer? If this be not statesmanship, wherein can statesmanship improve it? Substitute one of those whom we have been accustomed to rank as tried statesmen, and consider whether all interests of the country would repose in the same calm assurance of wise, peaceful, provident Government. With a Sumner in the White House—great as he is—would there be no fear of erratic conceptions and intractable policies? With a Trumbull for President,—acute, learned and broad as he is—would there be no apprehension of wayward notions and obstinate courses? We might have attempts at dazzling Administration. We might have new ventures in finance and new strokes of foreign policy. Business would stand waiting the issue of this novel recommendation or the result of that questionable experiment. But this is not what the country wants. It was the sound common sense of General Grant—his practical sagacity and his honest, sturdy purpose—that commended him to the people. What they wanted was not brilliant and showy action, but order, peace, full protection for all classes, full security for all interests, restored prosperity.

Nor have they been disappointed. The great results expected from General Grant's Administration have been abundantly realized. The fruits are before the country in positive, tangible form. All that the people anticipated and more has been accomplished. It is easy to indulge in pointless ad captandum talk about the necessity and importance of his statesmanship. But such vague and indefinite pictures have little value compared with the practical results and the tried and settled policy of the present Administration. If great objects of sound government are held up to our vision as desirable or vital, we point either to their actual realization or their initiation under General Grant. The taxes are reduced. The debt is in process of payment. The expenditures are diminished. Dishonesty in the service is punished. The great controversy with England has been honorably adjusted. Peace has been preserved with the Indians. The whole finances have been prudently administered. The disorders of the South have been repressed as far as possible. A steady hand has been held upon all the great interests with which the Government has been called to deal. A quiet deference to the public will has been shown upon all public occasions. And it is this faithful, tenacious, unostentatious guardianship which has so greatly commended the Administration to the approval of the people.

Oregon's Legal Rights as to Swamp Lands.

The Herald is constantly asserting that the State will realize a million dollars out of swamp lands, if the "efforts of the OREGONIAN and its party confederates" to defeat the measure be not successful. "The OREGONIAN and its party confederates" are powerless to defeat any just and legal rights which the State may have in swamp lands, and would not defeat those rights if they could. Those rights are of a character which the courts will enforce, and the State cannot be deprived of any lands to which it is legally entitled. But the OREGONIAN trusts that it and its "confederates" will be able to defeat a great scheme of public robbery, like those which have been practised in other States under this swamp land act, whereby vast areas of lands not swamp and overflowed have passed into the hands of speculators to the detriment of the States respectively. This is the scheme which the Herald fears we will defeat. Here is the rub. It knows that nobody can deprive the State of the lands actually granted by the act of Congress, because the Courts will enforce the legal rights of the State or of claimants under its authority. All this talk, therefore, about defeating the just claims of the State is moonshine. The fear is that claims not just may be defeated. Oregon, containing a small proportion of lands of really a swampy character—Perhaps no State in the Union contains a proportion so small. They who want to create a belief that there are one million acres of swamp lands in the State, are pursuing a deep game. One million acres would make about 1,600 square miles, [illegible] portion of sodden lands is not nearly so high. Behind the attempt to create an impression that it is, there must be some design of a questionable sort which, at least, it will do no harm to watch vigilantly.

The Recent Removals.

It is intimated by the Democratic press that the removal of Messrs. Meacham and Dyar was for a political purpose; and some of the organs grow plaintive and lachrymose over the fact that "two life-long Republicans" are displaced to make room for two men who once were Democrats. In the first place it is not true that there was any political agency or party manipulation in the removal of Messrs. Meacham and Dyar, and in the second place the Republican party does not go back beyond the flood in looking after a man's political antecedents. If it finds that in more recent times he has been right and has supported the party and its measures, it is deemed enough. And this is very much the case with the Democratic party also. That party, we all remember, supported Blair for Vice President of the United States. But this is aside from our purpose at this time. What we desire to say now is that the removal of Mr. Meacham was brought about simply by misinformation at the Department of his course towards the Indians, and that of Mr. Dyar was effected upon the theory that there had not been an equal division of the Indian Agencies of this State among the religious denominations. This is the exact truth, and it is well understood even by those who misrepresent the facts.

General Average.

A leading New York commercial paper, speaking of the law of general average, says that law is "still in its pristine, glorious uncertainty." An attempt has been made to settle on an international law of general average. At present London, Liverpool and New York not only differ in their doctrines on this subject, but each of these ports is often inconsistent with itself. Following is an account of the effort that has been made to get up an international law on the subject:—

> The English Social Science Association, indeed, in 1862, issued an invitation to all nations and languages, to come and settle at London the important doctrines of general average. An International conference on this subject had been previously arranged, and accordingly, the London gathering was characterized by due preparation and a goodly number of representatives from all the leading nations of the world, except France. The absence of a French representative was wholly owing to accident, and not to the want of sympathy on the part of the French Chambers with the object that drew together the other deputies to London. New York sent Mr. Bradford; Liverpool sent Mr. Lawrence R. Bailey, an authority on general average; and, in short, so far as learning and professional skill was concerned, the meeting was a success. A bill was adopted which contained upwards of ninety sections, leaving few or no debatable points in general average without an express definition. Time passed on, and the Social Science Association became tired of general average, and took up the question of freight. Amateur societies rarely devote much time to any one subject—like the busy bee, they skip along from flower to flower, buzzing and debating, and occasionally stinging one another with friendly joke or repartee. But they lay up nothing for winter. This, indeed, is not perhaps their fault. They are obliged often to vary their subject, and never to weary their audience or readers with long explanations. The general average bill, however, was not wholly forgotten by the Association since 1862, but was actually undergoing a course of probation through the Chambers of Commerce in France, when the war of last year broke out. The intention was to have the bill criticised throughout Europe and America, and then to have it passed by the British Parliament with such amendments as might have been urged by foreign officials. In this form it was to have been submitted to every nation represented in the Congress of 1862. But nothing further has been done.

Insufficient Salaries.

The insufficiency of the salaries of the more important officers of the United States has long been a matter of remark and regret. The same may be said of the principal officers of our own State. Neither our Governor, Secretary nor Treasurer receives an adequate salary. The time, we trust, will soon come when the people will view this subject in a proper light. In regard to the salaries of the principal officers of the United States the New York Evening Post has these remarks, which, without much modification, would apply to the salaries of the chief officials of Oregon:

> However satisfactory and reasonable they may have been when originally fixed, they are now so low that many of our most important public men are obliged to suffer open humiliation in their style of living, or else to supply annually from their private resources that which their step motherlike country denies them. One of the most distinguished writers, and respected political thinkers of our country has recently been obliged to decline the office of Secretary of State from these considerations. The present incumbent, it is supposed, spends, and in deference to the social position of the office almost inevitably must spend, an inconvenient multiple of his actual salary. Like most good literary men, the gentleman proposed to succeed him is richer to public esteem and regard than in his private stock of houses and lands, gold and jewels; and the country, through an ill-timed economy, fails to obtain the services of one of her ablest sons.

Condition of the Telegraph.

A dispatch from Yreka, dated Sunday, addressed to Dr. Plummer, Superintendent of the telegraph line, gives the following information as to the condition of the line, and of the efforts that are being made to get it in working order:

> Stoddard got down from Scott's Mountain to-night. He met Cummins at the summit. Cummins has mended fifty breaks since Monday. He has been out every day. He has a man with him who has been at work on the line south to Trinity Center. Murray is south of Trinity Center. The line has been down on Trinity Mountain badly. It breaks every night on Scott's Mountain. Cummins stays one night at the Summit, and at home the next. Snow is up even with the top of the house on the summit, and the first three stretches of line this side of the top are under snow. The poles are entirely out of sight, and it is still storming. I am satisfied the boys are doing all that can be done to get it to working. We can do no more.

A correspondent at Astoria writes in reply to a statement in the OREGONIAN of the 3d inst. to the effect that the business of bar and river pilotage is managed against the interests of Portland. He says that he "is where he can see how the business is carried on, both on the bar and river, and that he has observed nothing connected with either branch of pilots which has the least appearance of being managed in any such way; that the river pilots, who follow that branch of business for a support have no other business and are anxious to do all the piloting and make all the money they can, and are always ready to pilot vessels of the greatest possible draft (for they are paid by the foot) with the utmost dispatch, and have no incentive, either political or otherwise, to act in any other way,—three out of the four river pilots being Republicans." We give this statement the same prominence and publicity that we gave to the other; but a general traverse of the first statement does not in any way alter the fact that the masters of nearly all vessels coming into the Columbia river complain of the delays, exactions and inefficiency of pilot management, especially in regard to the tug at the bar.

The Methodist, speaking of the fact that the Southern States is beginning to take definite shape, says that "step by step Rome develops her scheme to get possession of America." By "Rome" is meant the Catholic Church. Suppose that Church is doing this; what then? It is natural that it, as well as all other churches, should try to extend its influence and power. All Protestant denominations have equal opportunity to do the same thing. The South is an open field. Those who fear the consequences of the extensive mission work among the blacks, contemplated by the Catholic Church, would better organize mission work of their own than to waste their opportunities with complaints and regrets.

The East Portland Era thinks that the petition to Congress by those citizens of Jackson county who object to the seizure of their lands by the swamp land ring, acting under Gov. Grover's law, is a "senseless thing." With due deference, it may be suggested that this is a matter which those who are immediately concerned and who have found it necessary to take some means to protect their rights, may better judge of than outsiders.

The Postoffice Department under the present administration exhibits the same improvements in a financial point of view that are witnessed in other Departments of the Government. The increase of revenue for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1871, over that of the year immediately preceding, was 6.13 per cent., while the increase of expeditures was but 4.45 per cent.

A New Banking Project.

A project is on foot in New York for the establishment of a large bank of discount and deposit, without circulation of notes, to supply money for the necessary wants of business at a lower rate of interest than that which rules at present. The principal features of the plan are as follows:

> The capital to be forty millions of dollars, with power to increase to one hundred millions; shares ten thousand dollars each, and none but citizens of the United States to be stockholders. No transactions to be had in foreign or domestic exchange, or the collection of money outside the city of New York, nor any dealing in securities other than those of the United States. No loans to be granted for a longer period than sixty days, nor loans on call, or on the bank stock, and no check to be certified unless the money is in bank. Any borrower to be permitted to pay his loan before maturity, less the unmatured interest. Every depositor to keep a permanent balance of not less than twenty thousand dollars, and no loans to be made except to those having accounts with the bank. The written particulars of every transaction to be open for the inspection of stockholders at all times. There are some other, but less noticeable original features in the plan, of the success and usefulness of which the originators of the idea, themselves among the leading financiers of New York, are said to be sanguine.

The Democratic State Convention is to be held at the Dalles on the 10th April. After a long session on Monday the Committee fixed upon that date. This is three months hence. Undoubtedly the idea of naming a day so distant was suggested by the consideration that it would be well to wait and see if something wouldn't turn up after a while and help the party to a new set of principles, and enable it to piece up a platform.

Sorrel is a great pest in Oregon and is very difficult to get rid of. A letter from Washington Territory, published in an agricultural paper of San Francisco, says that an application of gypsum will effectually kill it. There are mountains of gypsum on Burnt river in Eastern Oregon, which may some time be brought here by the car load.

We have heretofore published an exhibit of the military pension roll of the United States. From the report of the Secretary of the Navy we learn that the naval pension roll on the 1st November last contained the names of 3,133 persons, more than half of whom were widows and children. Annual payments on this account are $391,298 25.

HOW A HOUSE IS FINISHED.—When the carpenter built my father's house, and gave up the key, that house was not half builded. When my father and mother moved into it there was something else added which no carpenter could have put there. And when the first child was born, there was something else put there; not merely the child, but all the sweet thoughts and fancies, all the labors of love, all the tender care, all the ten thousand family enjoyments, that fell out in consequence of its presence there. And as brothers and sisters were added to the band (for God, as usual, blessed the ministerial household under my father's roof, and we were a troop;) as child after child came, each peculiarity, each taste, each individual element, gave a new fresco to the walls. The floors were poorly clad with carpets, and the house was scantily provided with furniture; but rich was the furniture with that which no upholsterer could make, and which no carpenter could frame. It was the family life of the old mansion. And to-day the chimney may smoke for aught I know (it did when I was a boy,) the wind may whistle through the crevices on the north side, for aught I know (it did when I was a boy;) but that house is more precious to me than any house built of marble and ornamented with gold could be. It was what my father and mother left me.—Beecher.

SLEEPLESSNESS.—The best anodyne is a liberal amount of muscular activity out doors every day. Persons who sit around the fire and lounge on the sofa, or read or sew a great part of the day, need not expect sound sleep; only the laboring man can taste it in all its sweetness.

Many fail to sleep at night because they will persist in sleeping in the day time. It is just as impossible to healthfully force more sleep on the system than the proportion of exercise requires, as to force the stomach to digest more food than the body requires. Rather than court sleep by industrious activities, many persons resort to medicine, and every new drug which is heralded as a promoter of sleep becomes at once immensely popular, even though it is known to possess dangerous qualities.

Chloral hydrate has had a great run, and even young men are known to be purchasing it at the drug stores, to be used in promoting sleep; it should never be taken unless advised by the family physician, for the medical journals are constantly publishing cases where serious harm and even fatal results attend its habitual use.—Journal of Health.

WE gather some idea of the commerce of Russia from a volume of statistics just published by the Russian Minister of Finance. In 1870 the exportations were of the value of nearly 352,000,000 of roubles, while the imports were only to the extent of 315,000,000. In 1869 the exports were 257,000,000, while the imports reached 324,000,000. Thus the value of exports increased in 1870 by 37 per cent. over 1869, in which year the increase was 75 per cent. over 1866, and 109 per cent. above 1860. Among the articles of exportation, wheat not only occupies the first place, but the trade in it had increased to an unprecedented extent. The value of wheat sent abroad in 1870 was 163,000,000 of roubles, while in 1867, a year of scarcity in Europe, the value of the export of that article did not exceed 94,000,000. In 1863, the least favorable year, the amount was only 44,000,000. After wheat, the chief exports are linseed and flax, which represented last year a value of $4,000,000.

THE NEW STIMULANT.—Chloral drinking, according to the physicians, is superseding absinthe, opium and alcoholic stimulants among the better classes. An insidious sedative, its use grows more dangerously on the tippler than more actively intoxicating drinks. [illegible] chemical industries, and it is sold by the ton. Baron Liebig affirms that one German chemist manufactures and sells half a ton a week. The London Spectator says: "Taking chloral is the new and popular vice, particularly among women, and is doing as much harm as alcohol. The drug is kept in thousands of dressing-cases, and those who begin its use often grow so addicted to it that they pass their lives in a sort of contented stupefaction. Chloral drunkards will soon be an admitted variety of the species."—Philadelphia Press.

Failure of many of the most eminent physicians of San Francisco to cure a case of Rheumatism.—Triumph of the Unk Weed Remedy.

SAN JOSE, August 25, 1871.

DR. A. M. LOEVEA & Co.: This is to certify that I, the undersigned, have been sick for five years with Rheumatism, and have been treated for many ailments. My trouble has been weakness of the back and side, and wandering pains all over my body. I have been treated by many of the most eminent physicians of San Francisco, as well as of this city, but without any effect. At last I was induced to try your UNK WEED REMEDY, and the result was that after taking the contents of two bottles I found myself perfectly cured. To all afflicted with Rheumatism, I say TRY THE UNK-WEED REMEDY, and you will be cured. Yours truly, Ordinance No. 1126.

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND "AN ORDINANCE to authorize the construction and operation of Street Railways in the City of Portland."

The City of Portland does ordain as follows:

Section 1. That Section 7 of Ordinance No. 1,005, entitled "An Ordinance to authorize the construction and operation of Street Railways in the City of Portland," approved September 12th, 1871, be and the same is amended so as to read as follows:

Section 7. The construction of the railways herein provided for, shall be commenced within one year from the 12th day of Sept., 1871, and the same shall be completed as follows: The railway on North First, First and South First streets from the Northern boundary of the city to the Southern boundary thereof, or as far North and as far South on the said streets as the same shall be graded; and the railway on B street from the intersection thereof with North First street to the West boundary of the city, or as far West as the said street shall be graded, shall be completed within eighteen months from said 12th day of September, 1871, and the railways upon at least one street running northerly and southerly and on one street running easterly and westwardly, shall be completed every year thereafter, until the railways upon all streets named herein shall be completed; and in case the boundary of the city shall be extended at any time within fifteen years after the passage of this Ordinance, in any direction, when the rights hereby conferred by the city upon said Estes shall also extend to the limits so extended and he or his successors in interest shall be required to extend their lines of railway to the limits so extended as fast as the grading of the streets shall proceed.

Provided, That on or before the first of January, 1873, the said Levi Estes or his assigns shall give notice to the Common Council, naming the street running east and west and the street running north and south on which it is intended to construct the railways as herein provided during the year next ensuing the date of such notice; and the railway on such street or streets so designated, shall be completed within the said ensuing year so far as the said street or streets shall be graded, and on or before the first of January of each succeeding year thereafter a like notice shall be given to the Common Council designating the street or streets upon which the railway is to be constructed the next ensuing year, as before; and as in the case before mentioned, the railway on such streets so designated shall be constructed the year ensuing the notice relative thereto, as far as the said street or streets shall be graded, until the entire system of railways provided for herein shall be completed.

Provided further, That said railway, when laid down and completed upon any street or streets herein named and as herein provided, shall be extended upon such street or streets whenever the graded portion of the street shall be extended; such extension of railway upon any street to correspond and to progress with the street improvements on said street.

Passed the Common Council Jan. 3, 1872.

W. S. CALDWELL,
Auditor and Clerk.

Approved Jan. 8th, 1872.

PHILIP WASSERMAN,
Mayor.

The Daily Oregonian.

TUESDAY MORNING, JANUARY 9, 1872.

CITY.

ST. HELENS ITEMS.—Our regular correspondent, under date Jan. 6th, writes:

The first term of our County Court convened last Tuesday. The session was mostly taken up in considering the usual business for the January term. Aside from this, among other things, a new election precinct was established in the Nehalem settlement. Now, there is something so unusual about this, that we are led to exclaim, "truth is stranger than fiction." The facts are these: Columbia county is Democratic by say about some 20 or 25 votes—some doubt if it has even that number. It is currently reported that Nehalem precinct will give about 18 Republican majority. It is impossible to account for the action of the Court upon any other hypothesis than that "the power behind the throne" is missing. Therefore, things don't go as they used to did. We sincerely hope the old fellow has not been half so badly sold in this matter as some of our friends were in the recent scuffle for the clerkship. We have heard of men getting their fingers badly burned in their inconsiderate haste to help their —Friends. How is that for high? Upon the whole, the term was but a success. Petitions inuring to the benefit of Republicans were granted. Who ever heard of the like before—that of influential Democrats being refused. It was apparent to all that the life of that Court had gone out of it, and if the Republican party do their duty next June, the life of the Democratic party will follow suit. So mote it be.

IN NEW QUARTERS.—During Sunday and yesterday, the Bulletin office was removed from the old place on Front street above Morrison, to the corner of First and Ash streets—into a two story brick building erected by Aukeny & Watson. The location is a long way from what used to be considered the business centre of the city, but considering the changes which have taken place in the last two years, it is now quite as central or more so than the old place. The building has been fitted up expressly for the Bulletin, and is therefore better fitted for a newspaper publication office than perhaps, any other in the State. The lower floor contains the publication and business offices, the engine and press rooms, and the mailing and store-rooms. The composing room, and job office, and the editorial room, parlor, and reporters' rooms are on the second floor. The building is one hundred feet depth by twenty-five feet width in front and twenty-eight rear, two stories high; is built in substantial fire-proof manner, and finished in handsome modern style. We tender our congratulations to editors, compositors, and all hands, upon the vast improvement in their several "situations."

A GOOD NAME.—We have often heard it said that Oregon merchants have little trouble, save in exceptional cases, in procuring credit at San Francisco for such amount of goods as they may want to buy on time, even when interior California merchants are treated less indulgently. This is due, of course, to the safe methods our merchants generally have of doing business. There is little recklessness and less speculation in the "Oregon style." We find the following complimentary notice of our merchants in a late San Francisco letter to the Bulletin, which is no more than just and true: "From the reputation that your merchants have of trading within their means, there is little danger of them extending their business beyond their control. The race of your business men may not be so promising in the start, nor so exciting for a part of the course as ours have been, but they will come in ahead at the winning post."

A TOBACCO SPITTIST.—One of our down town firms—on North Front street—has been enjoying a sensation for the last few days. They have a box fixed up in front of their store for the reception of the morning papers. The papers are put in the box every morning at an early hour, and regularly, at a later hour, some dirty spittist comes along and squirts into the box a mouthful or two of tobacco juice. The papers come out, of course, in delectable condition, and the proprietors are thrown into a state of temper about as mild as a roaring nor'wester. They will give that tobacco spittist a surprise, yet.

NEW HOSE COMPANY.—Last Saturday evening, a number of young men or youths, organized themselves into a Hose Company, to be called Columbia Hose Co. No. 3, and elected the following officers: George Maxwell, Foreman; Frank Baker, Assistant; G. A. Davis, President; H. D. Chapman, Secretary; J. Goldsmith, Treasurer. The company has got the material in it, and if we mistake not, will render a good account of itself whenever called upon for service. It is attached to Columbia Engine Co. No. 3.

DEMOCRATIC STATE CENTRAL COMMITTEE.—The Democratic State Central Committee met yesterday in Judge Page's office. It was decided to hold the next Democratic State Convention at The Dalles, on the 10th day of April. Having come so near it, we can't see why they did not say "All Fools' Day." We have no information as to whether the oil and water and gin of the committee mixed well or otherwise; and, as Toots would say, "It's of no consequence."

MISSING.—We are requested to state that a Mrs. Hellering, residing on Ninth street, near Main, is in distress at the disappearance of her daughter, Lizzie Hellering, who ran away from home about noon last Saturday. The girl is about thirteen. It is supposed she may have gone to the house of some acquaintance; and this statement is made in the hope of eliciting information as to her whereabouts.

A SIGN.—Private dispatches were received yesterday morning from the Dalles, stating that the ice in the Columbia had entirely disappeared, so far as could be seen, down the river from that place. The river is not probably yet open, but the breaking up at the Dalles, of the ice, is an indication that the blockade is about to be raised, and that we may soon have communication resumed with Eastern Oregon.

POSTAL ORDER BUSINESS AT OREGON CITY.—During the year 1871, the following money order business was transacted at the Oregon City post office. Total number of orders issued 760; total amount of orders $15,879 85; number of orders paid, 244; total amount paid on orders $8,316 47; total number of stamps cancelled the last half of the year, 12,930, amounting in value to $591 00.

EXPECTED.—If the almanac are, telegraph men and mail agents are not mistaken in their prognostics, we shall get an Eastern mail to-day, and then we trust grumblings will cease and everybody will be happy. This opportune arrival will save the newspapers the necessity of falling back upon Holy Writ for copy.

SHIPPING.—The Barracouta has finished loading and will probably sail to-day or to-morrow. She is bound for Liverpool with a cargo of wheat. The Windward is unloading at Moffett's wharf and the Whistler at Flander's. The Alden Besse and the Harrington are discharging railroad material at the East Side railroad depot.

ANNUAL CHURCH MEETING.—The annual meeting of the Unitarian Society will be held in their church this evening at 7 o'clock. At this meeting will be read the reports of the officers, and there will be an election of three trustees. All interested in the welfare of the society are invited to be present.

UNION PRAYER AND CONFERENCE MEETINGS.—The Young Men's Christian Association will hold Union Prayer and Conference meetings each day of this week of prayer, at their rooms in Ladd & Tilton's bank building. Yesterday the meeting was very numerous. The hours are from twelve M. till one P. M.

PILES OF MUD.—Some idea of the floods of Saturday night may be gained by observing the huge piles of mud scraped yesterday, from the sidewalks, crossings, and sewer mouths. The latter were entirely choked, and some of them had not less than a good cart-load of mud heaped on them.

COURTS.—The U. S. Circuit Court met yesterday but transacted little business beyond calling the docket. The County Commissioners held a meeting in the afternoon and spent the session in making up the list of names required by law from which to draw the next Circuit Court jury.

A "CAMP" AT OREGON CITY.—A considerable number of the members of Ellison Encampment, of this city, went to Oregon City yesterday afternoon to take part in the institution of Falls Encampment.

THE STEAMER.—The steamship Ajax was advertised to sail yesterday afternoon at four o'clock, but yesterday morning her sailing was postponed till 4 P. M. to-day.

AMUSEMENTS.

ORO FINO THEATER.—"The Creole," a French drama, was produced last evening to a full house. The play has not much depth of plot, but it has two or three very good characters—Anthony Latour, a Creole as cooly vindictive and as passionately revengeful as could be possibly wished even in a Creole; Bokes, a Jew money lender; Alphonse De Nyon, a French officer and the owner of an estate in the Isle of France; and Bellona St. Marc, a Vivandiere. Waldron personated the Creole and did a good piece of acting of that sort, in which deep passion gleams out through a cool and quiet exterior. Mr. Barry, of course, did the Jew, and in the most artistic and laughter-provoking manner. Mr. Mulsord's Alphonse De Nyon was a quite creditable piece of acting. Mrs. Waldron made up as a Vivandiere very well, but she frequently lacked sprightliness of action, and force of utterance, though she occasionally blazed out in an excellent style, showing what she could do with the character, if she were to choose to do it. Miss Annie Pixley did a quite pretty piece of acting where she met Alphonso for the first time, knowing him to be her master. Miss Minnie Pixley had the appearance of being inattentive. Mr. Robinson would have done the part of Mons. Damerion very well but for being too fussy and allowing his comedy habits to intrude upon his face where it ought to be steady and intent. The entertainment closed with "Family Jars." The same bill will be offered to-night.

ANOTHER SKATING MASQUERADE.—We are informed that the burlesque of last Saturday night will be repeated next Thursday evening, at the skating rink.

HARRISON'S GUIDE.—We have received from the editor Part I. of "Harrison's Guide and Resources of the Pacific Slope." This part relates exclusively to Washington Territory, but it is the intention to issue in the future parts devoted to Oregon, Idaho, Nevada and California, making in all five. The work thus far promises well. It furnishes a vast amount of information in relation to Washington, giving a minute description of its lands, and the facilities for settlement, the land laws, climate, resources, etc.—just that sort of information which the Eastern people will be glad to get, and which will do the country good if it be circulated abroad. The author, J. M. Harrison, has had ample opportunities, as he says, for observation and the collection of facts concerning the States and Territories of the Pacific coast; and he is personally known by a number of men in this city and in Washington county.

RESOLUTIONS OF CONDOLENCE.—A special meeting of the Father Matthew Total Abstinence and Benevolent Society was held last evening at which the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, It has pleased the Almighty in his ineffable goodness to take from our midst our late lamented brother, Edward Martin; therefore,

Resolved, That we do heartily sympathize with his bereaved family in this their hour of affliction; that in his loss our society has been deprived of a good member, and temperance of a strong advocate; that a copy of this resolution be sent to his family, and also be published in the daily papers.

RISING.—As might have been expected, the river is swelling rapidly. It is getting up so near to the level of the basement cellars along the city front as to create some uneasiness in the minds of merchants who have large stocks of goods in them.

The New England Mutual Life Insurance of Boston has succeeded in the short space of three and a half years in doing the second largest business on the Pacific coast. This liberal patronage has been accorded this company by a just discrimination on the part of the insuring public. Careful and thoughtful persons when taking out their Life Policies, have selected the New England Mutual by reason of its age, experience, careful and economical management, its equitable policies, and also from the fact that all of its policies are absolutely guaranteed against forfeiture by the laws of the State of Massachusetts. Office in Portland, No. 8 Front street, Central Block. Joseph Middlemiss, Superintendent of Agencies for Pacific coast.

THE NEW ENGLAND MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY was incorporated in 1835, and is therefore the oldest purely Mutual Life Insurance Company in the United States; it has cash assets of over $10,000,000, and is the only Company on the Pacific Coast governed by the Massachusetts Non-Forfeiture Law, offering all the advantages of age and prudent management, its average expenses being lower than any other Company in the United States. It also offers protection against forfeiture by virtue of the MASSACHUSETTS NON-FORFEITURE LAW, which is a feature of great importance, and should be carefully considered by all persons seeking insurance. TESTIMONIALS.

We the undersigned having been the recipients of the services of Mrs. M. O. White in teaching the science of Music on the Pianoforte, take pleasure in giving a hearty Testimonial that we have employed her in our families as a teacher of her "New Method of Instruction," and that it has proven superior to any method we have ever known. And that although the first cost may be a trifle greater than some others, we believe it to be in the aggregate much cheaper, beside being a great economy in point of time. We therefore, take pleasure in recommending her to the patronage of all who may be desirous of obtaining a musical education, as a very superior instructor.

To those who desire to know more about it before increasing any expense, we give a cordial invitation to call at our house and interview her pupils.

For reference see advertisement.

EAST PORTLAND, Jan. 3, 1872.

MRS. M. O. WHITE—Respected Madam—Having heard of your System of teaching the Pianoforte, known as the Robins' American Method, and having been present a few days since, at the exercises of one of your pupils, Miss Lane, of East Portland, I was much surprised and exceedingly gratified, at the perfect performance of the most difficult pieces, (such as Gottschalk Bango, etc.) and this after the short term of six months tuition.

Allow me to express my approbation of your System of your Instruction, and with my best wishes for your success allow me to subscribe myself,

Yours Respectfully,

Winter-Proof Systems.

Thick boots and flannels are necessary at this season, but the human frame requires something more than these to render it winter-proof. The inner man, as well as the outer surface of the body, must be protected. The raw, moist, chilly winds which prevail at this season transpierce the warmest clothing, and are apt to affect the health unfavorably, both through the pores and the respiratory organs. The surest way to avert the evil is to strengthen the internal machine, and thus enable it to repel the devitalizing influence of unwholesome weather. Enrich the blood, gently stimulate the circulation, regulate the bowels, invigorate the stomach, tone the liver, and brace the nerves with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and no condition of the atmosphere, however inclement, no variation of the barometer or thermometer, however sudden, will have power to disorder the system thus fortified in advance, and put in perfect working order. Damp and cold, acting upon a sensitive or feeble organization, may produce consumption, diptheria, neuralgia, rheumatism, dyspepsia, liver complaint, low nervous fever, or intermittent fever, the importance of rendering the system impervious to these two destructive elements is therefore obvious. Persons in delicate health, or who are at all liable to be injuriously affected by atmospheric influences, should take the Bitters daily throughout the winter and spring. In this way dangerous diseases may be warded off, and a condition of perfect health preserved by individuals of comparatively feeble physique, while those more robust, who scoff at precautions, are suffering the penalty of their recklessness in hospitals and sick rooms.

AN UNPREJUDICED PHYSICIAN

INTERVIEWED.

Bold Opinions Truly Expressed.

POPULARITY IS NOT ALWAYS A proof of desert. Every newspaper man knows that. Many articles are engineered into temporary popularity that have no intrinsic merit whatever. It is an easy thing to make sweeping assertions and sow them broadcast in the columns of the public press. But there is a class of experienced and thoughtful birds not to be caught with chaff, like Captain Cuttle, they want "an opinion as is an opinion," in other words, the judgment of competent and disinterested authority, as a basis for their own.

Several of these cautious individuals having done us the honor to invite an expression of opinion in these columns on the properties of the much talked of Tonic known as PLANTATION BITTERS, we have taken the pains to obtain from a distinguished physician whose ability and integrity of purpose no one will venture to question, what may fairly be deemed a conclusive answer to the questions of our correspondents. Dr. Elias Kennedy Whitmarsh, as a surgeon, pathologist and chemist, has few superiors west of the Alleghanies, and the following conversation which occurred a few days ago between that gentleman and one of our staff, is offered, without comment, for the information of "whom it may concern:"

REPORTER.—Have you any objection to state your views in relation to a medicinal preparation which has obtained great celebrity in this country? The object is to ascertain whether the reputation is deserved or not.

DR. WHITMARSH—If I know anything about the article, I'll tell you what I think of it. How is it named?

REPORTER—PLANTATION BITTERS.

REPORTER—Anything else?

WHITMARSH—Yes, it has a mild aperient property, and produces a salutary effect upon the liver when that organ is diseased.

REPORTER—It contains alcohol I understand—Santa Croix Rum.

DR. WHITMARSH—Of course it contains a diffusive stimulant. If it did not its medicinal ingredients would be comparatively inert. They are rendered operative by the alcoholic principle.

REPORTER—Supposing that theory to be correct, a Santa Croix Rum's good article for that purpose?

DR. WHITMARSH—The best, I think. It is more nutricious and far less exciting than the spirits made from grapes or grain.

REPORTER—But are stimulants really necessary at all in medical treatment?

DR. WHITMARSH—Sir, if you had ever practiced medicine you would not ask the question. They are an essential portion of the materia medica. Every intelligent member of the profession knows that. The physician who denies it is either a hypocrite or a fool.

REPORTER—Do you consider a medicated stimulant like the PLANTATION BITTERS preferable to simple alcohol? In other words, would the Santa Croix Rum be as useful without the other ingredients as with them?

DR. WHITMARSH—Certainly not. Among those ingredients are Extract of Dandelion, one of the finest antibilious medicines I know of; Calisaya Bark, of all tonics the best, and Chamomile, an admirable stomachic. The remedial powers of these curatives is increased probably tenfold by the nutritive stimulant with which they are incorporated.

REPORTER—You seem to have a high opinion of the Bitters.

DR. WHITMARSH—I simply state facts, sir. You must draw your own conclusions.

REPORTER—May I ask if you ever prescribed PLANTATION BITTERS for your patients?

DR. WHITMARSH—I do, frequently. All that I have said to you is founded on my own experience. I never make positive statements on unsubstantial grounds.

REPORTER—I am sure of that. Excuse me for having trespassed so long on your valuable time. Good evening.

We presume the correspondents who have addressed us on the subject of PLANTATION BITTERS, will consider their questions satisfactorily answered by the remarks of Dr. Whitmarsh.

CHASED BY WOLVES.

It was a race for life. Following hard upon the fleet skater were a troop of wolves as fleet. Charles Vance heard their breathing, the short impatient snuffs, the regular patter of sharp feet upon the ice like a click. The scene lay in Canada. The moon sailed through drifting clouds, now partially obscured, then bursting forth in a flood of silvery light. At one side was the dense pine forest, broken by clumps of leafless oak or hickory, and winding in and out as it followed the course of the river; on the other, the wide, snow covered plain. A mile yet before a house would be reached, and in that time—

Brave as he was, Mr. Vance shuddered. At twenty-eight there was so much of life before him. He had reached a point where fortune began to smile upon him; and for the past six months his leisure hours had been bright with glowing air-castles, which all had Rose Ardley for their day dream. For her sake it was that he had undertaken this perilous journey.

Faster! faster! This turn showed him the fierce, gleaming eyes, that repeated themselves until there seemed to be hundreds. Rays of lurid light flashed out; lolling scarlet tongues, that thirsted for a draught of blood, and a dainty morsel of flesh. A misstep, a half-hidden hillock of ice to trip the unwary traveler, a moment lost, and he would be in the power of these ravenous animals. No wonder his pulses quivered, or that he shrank from so horrible a fate.

More than once he had gone up and down the river for pleasure. More than once there had been a gay party—girls in their pretty skating costumes—but sweetest of all was Rose, her golden curls blown about by the wind, her cheeks brilliant, her purple eyes dilating with enjoyment. Bright and coquettish was she, fond of teasing him until his patience was almost exhausted; but a sweet loving girl in the midst of it. At midsummer she was to be his wife. He had extorted that promise from her, though he would have fain taken her long before. And yet only the other morning they had fallen into a trifling dispute about this very visit. She wanted him to go up for this Thursday evening; he did not see his way clear to do it conveniently.

"Thursday is pay day," he had said, alluding to his works and workmen. "I never can get away Thursday nights until dark. My horse has fallen lame, too, Rose; I cannot ride him after to-day."

"You once thought skating up the river a mere pastime," replied Miss Ardley, and her tone was a trifle sharp and haughty.

"In the day time, and with company. That makes a difference."

"Oh, very well; if you care so little to come, there's no more to be said." And she turned away with an air of superb indifference.

"Rose, it is not that. I can come up Friday, and stay until Monday."

"But Thursday night is Eleanor's birthnight. I thought of the pleasure to her, to have you among her guests. Don't put yourself out, however."

Charles Vance was not a man likely to be canonized for either meekness or patience; and she was purposely trying him. He felt vexed.

"I'll come if I can," responded Mr. Vance shortly. His tone was cold, and his eyes wandered over the waste of snow.

"Very well," she gaily said; "I shall expect you, mind. Good-bye." And she kissed to him the tips of her dainty fingers.

He strode down the path, unhitched his horse with a jerk, and went riding over the road never once glancing back. Perverse Rose Ardley was privately peeping after him, rather enjoying than not the semi-quarrel.

"I'll not go; she shall not get me there on Thursday evening," he answered to himself in his annoyance. But ere Thursday evening came his resolve was broken, after the manner of lovers, and he meant to go.

"I must skate up," he said; "the night's clear and frosty."

"Hope there'll be no wolves abroad, Master Vance," said the brawny Englishman, Hugh, one of his workmen and warm admirers. "You'd better take a pistol."

"I'll trust to luck and my good skates," answered Mr. Vance, laughingly, rather ridiculing the notion of wolves.

He started. The night, as he observed, was clear and frosty, very bright and cold. Half his journey had been accomplished, when he heard a shrill, sharp echoing from the woods. Then another, as in answer, and one at a distance. For a moment his blood curdled in his veins. What were these cries? Ah, what—what but the wolves!

Nearer came the cry, and nearer, as if the dreadful animals scented their victim. He glided over the ice like lightning, his strides quickened by the first click he heard from his pursuers—at first, as rapidly as possible, in a straight line, for not a second was to be lost. Every nerve and limb was straightened to its utmost tension. A mile, perhaps, and if he had to double—a horrible flash of despair almost paralyzed him. That was certain death. Why had he been so heedless as to disregard sage Hugh's warning? But he had never seen a wolf during his sojourn in the Canadian wilds.

Faster! faster! Turns that frightfully lengthened his journey, but gave him a moment's respite, for his pursuers were by this means thrown off their track, and were some time in recovering their speed. The moon shone out brightly. Every tree seemed outlined against the sky with painful distinctness; here a gnarled old oak, that had been riven with some fierce bolt, there a clump of gleaming evergreens, that mocked him in their security. And now the river widened. Hardly a week before, he and Rose Ardley had enjoyed a gay frolic of skating on this very spot. Was she still vexed with him? Oh! if she could but know!

In imagination their red tongues seem to touch him. One of them seemed to hurt himself in some way, for there came a sharp howl of pain. The pursuit was stopped for an instant, and then they came on the faster. Charles Vance's limbs were weak, his pulse throbbing from exhaustion, his very brain reeled. The fiery eyes seemed to scorch him with their lurid glare, and now he could hear the rapid, expectant breath. So near safety, and—a despairing cry broke from his lips. Rose, Rose! Farewell to her, to happiness, to all.

Rose Ardley, the center of a gay troup of cousins and friends, was this same evening doing her utmost to be attractive. She was fascinating at all times and seasons; but when she used a little effort, could make herself doubly so. She had forgiven Charles Vance a dozen times since that last angry morning. He would be sure to come early, she complacently told herself, and be duly penitent. After all, Charles was a brave, noble fellow. She thought she would not flirt one bit that night with anybody else. The guests all arrived. All but Mr. Vance. Rose wondered. Had he been really vexed, and was he staying away to punish her? Well, let him stay. She should not mope or wear the willow. Lovelorn girls were all absurd.

So Rose Ardley was the gayest of the gay. They had a quadrille; some of the older ones sat down to games. Dr. Caltran, a deeply scientific man and a great mesmerist, and three or four others, went into a discussion on that wonderful subject—clairvoyance. The doctor had been relating certain remarkable incidents, when it was proposed that a test should be given then. Who would become a subject?

No one appeared inclined at first, but Miss Caltran finally acquiesced, and took her seat in a chair in a small room they adjourned to.

The doctor had succeeded in sending her to sleep when Rose looked in. Her attention was immediately arrested, and she watched the experiment with much eagerness.

"Would any one like to put any questions?" asked Doctor Caltran.

There ensued a silence. Eleanor Ardley broke it.

"Rose will. Rose is always ready for anything." And Rose acquiesced at once.

"I don't know what to ask or what I would most like to hear," she said, with a gay laugh.

"Ask about Charley. Ask what keeps him away. You can tease him well when you know that."

"But—is there really any truth in it, Dr. Caltran?" and Rose's eyes were luminous with some feeling akin to curiosity.

"It is true the medium can in many cases seem to enter a person's mind and answer in a remarkable fashion," was the reply. "Many failures are recorded and mistakes made, but I think they are due to our imperfect knowledge of the science. Suppose you try, Miss Rose; no one can suspect you of collusion."

Quite a circle began to hover round. Miss Caltran appeared to be in a tranquil slumber; her lips were just parted, suggesting her white, even teeth, which were very handsome.

"Well?" said Rose, daringly.

"Place your hand in hers," directed the director. "Now think intently of the subject in which you wish her to feel interested, and then ask your question."

A thousand thoughts filled Rose Ardley's brain in an instant, but that of Charley Vance was the most prominent. What should she say? for delicacy seemed to hold her back on this subject.

"Make haste," cried Eleanor. "What is Charley Vance doing? Has he gone to sleep and forgotten to come here? Or has he gone visiting elsewhere?"

Rose colored. "I think I will not ask—" but a chorus of eager voices interrupted her:

"Play fair now Rose. No backing out."

"Are you afraid?"

It was her cousin who asked this, and the sarcastic tone would have roused Rose to any effort. In a strange flutter of nerve and brain she began.

Rose's mood was too uncertain at first to sway Miss Caltran (at least so said the Doctor,) she moved uneasily and vainly essayed to speak. He approached to tranquilize her. It was some time before any coherent answers could be obtained, and then Rose was wrought up to a strange pitch. Some sudden presentiment concerning her lover filled her mind with apprehension. As if translating the young girl's emotion, Miss Caltran began slowly:

"Your friend is in great danger—great danger. He is flying as if for his life, first this way and then that way," making a tortuous motion with her hand. "He is on the river—the ice—and something follows him fast. Hark, do you hear a sharp cry?"

Rose turned deadly white in spite of her strongest efforts.

"Is he coming here?" she asked, scarcely knowing what she said.

"Oh, they are gaining on him fast. He goes like the wind, but they are too fleet."

As Miss Caltran said this—and it must be remarked that her words throughout were labored and slow—she sighed deeply and appeared much agitated. Her breath was long and painful.

"Now they are up with him—now! Oh, save him! save him! Hark, to their cries!"

"Oh, what fools we are," suddenly exclaimed George Ardley, a light breaking on him. "I see it all. Vance has skated up on the ice and been followed by a pack of wolves. One was killed a day or two ago. Run for your lives, friends. Get something and come to his assistance."

Rose stood spell-bound. For a moment the room swam round; stars appeared to fill every space.

George thrust on his cap and slung his rifle over his shoulder. Two or three followed suit, and the rooms were in a whirl of confusion.

"Let me go too," Rose almost shrieked.

"My child, there may be some mistake," said Dr. Caltran, soothingly, alarmed at the consequences of his sister's vision. "Do pray be calm."

"No, there is no mistake," she answered, hysterically. "I told him to skate up—his horse was lame—I dared him to come. Oh, merciful heavens, forgive me!"

She was in a perfect agony of despair. The horrible vision her cousin George's words conjured up made a more vivid one in her brain. Her face, that had been so brilliant a short time before, was now the picture of anguish. She could not help thinking that if any evil had befallen him it was clearly her fault. How many, many times she had tormented him almost beyond endurance; been cool, capricious, laughed at his tenderness and his love. Arraigning her heart for judgment she found it had been bitterly cruel to him, to the one man to whom she would give her life if occasion required. In the confusion and crowd she passed quietly up stairs, got her shawl and hood and stole out unseen. Along she sped like a shadow wraith, and was on the river as soon as the men with their rifles.

Hark! What was that? A sickening, despairing cry—a wail of mortal agony. Rose recognized it for his voice—for they were close upon him now.

Yes, the cry came from Charles Vance. With the one despairing burst he gave up hope and turned upon his horrible pursuers. In the moonlight his eyes glared back to those fierce balls, and there was a deathly pause. The suddenness amazed the unreasoning brutes, but the foremost crouched to spring.

A ball went whirring by, so close that Mr. Vance felt the hot air on his cheek. Then a yell ensued, ending with a howl of maddening pain. Another report, another; footsteps, voices; yet he did not stir.

At first he could not think, could not speak; the utter surprise and sense of deliverance overwhelmed him. He knelt down on the ice, trembling in every limb, and the rest came thronging around. The discomfitted enemy were retiring with savage cries, leaving two of their number dead behind them.

"What is it all?" began Mr. Vance. "I—I can not imagine—"

"Do not try," interrupted George Ardley. "It is the strangest thing that ever happened. Can you walk home? I'll see to Rose." And he picked her up as though she had been a baby.

They then went home slowly. Mr. Vance's strength was all but exhausted. Angry mutterings followed them from afar, but there was no real danger now. Rose, recovering consciousness, struggled away from her cousin's protection.

"Let me walk—I am quite well now," she said, with a touch of her old imperiousness. And she got to Mr. Vance's side.

"Oh, Charles! I have been so selfish and cruel. Will you ever forgive me?"

Charles' answer was to take her arm within his and press it to his side. She broke down with a sob.

"Hush, my darling! God has interposed to save me. But still I do not understand how or why you should all have come."

"Oh, Charles! it is the strangest tale. You will hardly believe it—you who have laughed at—"

"Don't spoil the story, Rose," said George Ardley from behind. "We'll have it all out when we get home."

Was Dr. Caltran surprised when he heard of the strange escape and saw the rescued man? He made no sign. Miss Caltran, the clairvoyant, was herself then, save for an intense, dull headache.

"They had gained on me so fast that it seems as if I could not have held out a minute longer," said Mr. Vance to the doctor. "Besides the short distance on the river there was the dark walk up to the house, and my courage was utterly giving way."

Rose burst into tears. "Charles, as long as I live I will never be capricious again," she whispered; "no, not even when I am your wife; I will try to be a blessing to you instead of a trouble."

And he kissed the sweet lips for their fond confession.

So it all ended well. But the wonderful escape of Charles Vance from the peril of the wolves is talked of in Canada to this day.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

MONDAY EVENING, Jan. 8th, 1871.

Gold in New York 109¼.

Portland Legal Tender quotations 90½c buying; 91½c selling.

The steamer Ajax's time for leaving was to-day postponed. She is now announced to leave at 4 o'clock to-morrow afternoon.

The bark Amelia is at Kalama discharging railroad materials, and will be up as soon as it is discharged. A copy of her manifest we present below.

The bark Whistler commenced discharging to-day. The General Average Bond is signed by all to whom presented without comment. The vessel being a favorite with our shippers, all take delight in aiding her as much as lies in their power.

The bark Whistler will be laid on for a cargo of produce to San Francisco immediately following the discharge of her cargo.

The first shipment of Wheat to the United Kingdom this year will be by the Barracouta which finished loading to-day. Her cargo consists of 10,449 sacks Wheat, 20,387 centals. The bark Harrington will, as soon as her cargo of railroad material is discharged, commence receiving her cargo of Wheat for Cork.

The present session of Congress attracts more attention from the commercial interests of the United States than any previous, owing to the many changes looking to the general modification of all revenue laws, and also to the revision of our ship building and marine laws. At the last meeting of the House Committee of Commerce in last month, Mr. Lynch introduced the question of reviving American commerce by the encouragement of shipbuilding. Rival representatives of wooden ships and iron ships were on hand, each claiming that their branch of industry should be fostered rather than the other. It is asserted that the iron shipyards on the Delaware river are in a prosperous condition, and that John Roach of New York is establishing a new establishment at Chester with Henry Steers as architect, which will compete with the yards on the Clyde. If wooden shipbuilding is by Congress fostered we have in this State and also on Puget Sound superior facilities for engaging in it, as the ships built on Puget Sound attest to. If iron shipbuilding is given the preference, we have an iron mine near at hand which can supply all the iron necessary and spars of superior quality also near at hand, so that if any enterprising party or parties wish to engage in building iron ships it could be done on this coast where a great demand now exists for them.

That the fires in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota will cause the price of Lumber to advance higher than ever known in the Eastern States, and also advance prices where heretofore the European demand has been supplied, owing to the Eastern States calling upon them to some extent for their supplies, can be readily seen by the following statement of their production: The average yield of Lumber in Michigan for the years 1868, 1869, and 1870 was 1,800,000,000 feet, and in Minnesota and Wisconsin the same years the average was 1,250,000,000 feet. The entire production of White Pine Lumber in the United States East of the Rocky Mountains aggregated 3,000,000,000 for the same years.

The rapidity with which the price of Tin has been advancing in the markets of the world, with the extreme rate at last advices not reached, must necessarily enhance the market value of all descriptions of Canned Goods this Spring in the markets East and also of the Canned Fruits and Vegetables put up on this coast. That our market will be sooner or later affected is conceded by all; but what will be the effect on Canned Salmon put up on the Lower Columbia is as yet not quite so clear, but it is thought the price of that canned this year will be higher than last year. This it is thought is now likely to be the case, as this year's catch will hardly exceed that of 1871 which was 30 per cent. less than last year (1870). The superior manner in which the Salmon of Oregon is put up causes it to be sought for wherever introduced and each year's experience adds to the packers better facilities as also better judgment in making selections of such fish as are desirable for canning. There is a gentleman (an Englishman of large connections in Europe) now in our city, who, if he can perfect such arrangements as desired, by which he can place on a line of packets from here to Liverpool will, in addition to shipping Wheat, Spars, etc., also engage in the shipping of packed Salmon to Liverpool direct.

We are informed that the superior condition in which the Barracouta's cargo from Liverpool was delivered has awakened renewed interest in direct shipments from Europe. That the superior advantages of direct shipments should have been so long unrecognized by our merchants is a prolific source of wonderment to many capitalists who have visited us. As, independent from allowing our merchants to come in on the same footing as importers in San Francisco, thus allowing them to undersell those in San Francisco—when we add freight from there here—it also gives our produce a better market, for it brings in greater competition for Wheat and Flour. There is no danger of too heavy shipments here as our field is growing and can be enlarged to any extent desired. By January, 1873, it is safe to assert that the North Pacific Railroad will have their road in running order from the waters of the Columbia to those of Puget Sound, and with proper steps taken the whole or the greater part of the trade of Puget Sound, heretofore going to San Francisco can be made to concentrate here. The Oregon and California Railroad is penetrating South, bringing in points to be supplied every year. This year we can safely count on the trade of Umpqua valley coming here, besides other points in the vicinity of the valley drawing their supplies from here.

Produce Market.

WHEAT—Up to the first of January, 1872, our receipt of last season's harvest amounted to 436,825 centals and of Flour in Wheat centals, 202,245; total receipt; 639,070 centals. The amount that is known and estimated to come forward is 22,000 tons or 440,000 centals, which, together with that in the hands of millers, that will come forward in Flour, will give us a surplus as estimated by us at the fore part of the season of 75,000 tons or 1,500,000 centals. This is reducing Flour to Wheat and allowing so much for our home consumption. The market in the absence of any transactions may be quoted dull, with shippers offers reduced to $2 55 per cental, sacked and delivered.

FLOUR—The local demand is fair for extra of standard brands at $7 per bbl, choice country, $6 25; superfine and outside brands, $5@6 50 per bbl.

EGGS—Under heavier receipts are difficult to sell above 45 cts per doz.

General Merchandise.

HARDWARE—New York advices of Dec. 15th says that business continues unusually active for the season, and prices are very firm, with the expectation of higher values. All plumbers' copper goods, boilers, &c., &c., have been advanced 15 ℘ cent, and English plumbers's earthen ware, was also generally held yesterday 15 ℘ cent. higher. Japanned and plain tin ware will be advanced January 1st. By an arrangement of the manufacturers, both Burden's and Perkins' horse shoes are now quoted $5 60 delivered here. Emerson's razor strops are quoted 40 and 10 ℘ cent. discount. Clement and Hawke's Mfg Co. Planter's hoes are firm at 10 ℘ cent. discount. Foreign goods continue very firm at home, and consequently here, though rather quiet. The "Patent Lighting Saw" of E. M. Boynton, 80 Beekman street, to which we alluded when on exhibition at American Institute Fair, has rapidly cut its way into general use, and become a staple article in trade.

DRUGS AND DYES—The New York market at last advices for Opium is dull and lower, 5@10 cases sold at $3,70 gold, in bond. Cream Tartar is firmer. Bromide Potash has advanced to $1 20 currency. Cutch is held at 4⅞@5 cents gold. Chemicals are active and firm. Blue Vitriol has advanced to 10½ cents. Lump Alum is higher. Crushed Brimstone, $35 per ton.

COPPER—The New York Shipping List says that manufactures of Copper are very firm at the advance noted in our last, and with a further considerable rise in the price of the raw material, the prospect seems imminent for a still higher adjustment of values on all manufactured goods. Cable advices quote a further advance £5 per ton in London on Chili Pig and Selected English, and our market retains the feverish, unsettled feeling noted in our last. The business has again been large at an advance of ¾@1¼ cents ℘ lb. The moderate stock is concentrated, and with no considerable addition to the supply possible from the Lake region before next May, and the present prices in England preventing importations thence, the market seems to be entirely under the control of the holding interest.

RICE—We note sales to-day of 350 mats, ex Garibaldi, on private terms. Market rules firm, for strictly No. 1, jobbing lots 9½ cts; No. 2 8¼@8½.

Daily Receipts of Produce.

Per E. N. Cooke—1,642 sks wheat, Corn eck & Co; 411 hf sks flour; Williams & Myer; 25 bxs apples, 2 bxs plums; 2 pkgs butter, Allen & Lewis; 3 bls woolen goods, B B & Co; 39 bxs apples, Corbitt & Macleay; 190 sks middlings, Everding & Farrell; 800 hf sks, 400 qr sks flour, Beach & Montel; 1 bl woolen goods, L White & Co.

IMPORTS.

CONSIGNEES.

CITY ADVERTISEMENTS.

City Assessment.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE ASSESSment Roll of the City of Portland has been duly filed and will remain open at the Auditor's office until January 15, 1872, prior to which time all applications for correction of errors must be filed. Particular attention is directed to the following Section, Ordinance No. 1113.

Section 3. Any person deeming himself aggrieved by the assessment, valuation, or listing of property may apply to the Common Council for a revision of the same. Such application shall contain a list of all the property subject to taxation for city purposes, owned by, in the hands of, or under the control, of the applicant and a concise statement of the particular item or items claimed to be erroneously assessed, which said application shall in all cases be verified by the oath or affirmation of the applicant, and must be filed with the Auditor before the first day of January following the date of the filing of the assessment roll.

The time named in said Section is extended to January 15, 1872.

TO THE UNFORTUNATE.
NEW REMEDIES, NEW & CURES.
Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,
623 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL,
San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned from visiting the principal Hospitals of Europe, and has resumed practice at his old office, 623 Kearny street, corner of Commercial, San Francisco, where his old patients and those requiring his services may find him.
The Doctor has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with increased facilities for the alleviation of human suffering.

Horrible Diseases.
How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at the pallid, emaciated and disfigured forms and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying maladies, see that they are cared for and cured before it be too late. Bring them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private diseases his specialty [illegible] is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their [illegible] to curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of these sharpers.

Seminal Weakness.
Seminal [illegible], the consequence of self-[illegible]. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual [illegible], is practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing with unerring certainty the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequently insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by any of the San Francisco quacks.

MARRIAGE.
Of those who contemplate marriage, who are laboring under any of the above ailments, should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them, nor delay to obtain immediate relief.
DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

CURED AT HOME.
Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions. By inclosing Ten Dollars coin, in registered letter through the Postoffice or through Wells, Fargo & Co., a package of medicine will be forwarded to any part of the Union.
All communications strictly confidential.

Caution to the Unfortunate.
Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders, who, with bogus sworn-to certificates, dupe the unwary. Some of the self-styled doctors, whose names are to be found in the daily and weekly newspapers of San Francisco and other places, are tradesmen and barbers, too lazy to work at their trades. Some are tinsmiths, shoemakers, newspaper carriers, intelligence office keepers, etc. Look over the San Francisco Directory and you will not find their Medical Institutes in it, but you will find their former occupations in it. Look at the Directory for 1862 and 1863. The only way to avoid imposition is to make inquiry—it will cost you nothing, and may save you many regrets; for, as advertising physicians, in eight cases out of ten are bogus, there is no safety in trusting any of them until you know who and what they are. Dr. Gibbon does not deceive people by exhibiting bogus titles, certificates, pretended patients' letters, etc. Dr. Gibbon will satisfy persons who may call at his office of his ability to treat diseases that he purports to cure.
Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 623 Kearney st., near Commercial, San Francisco. Post Office Box 1,957.
REMEMBER TO PUT BOX 1,957 ON THE [illegible] Consultations FREE.
Correspondents will please inform DR. GIBBON that they read his advertisement in the Daily Oregonian.
